Final hurdle for free school bid

DOZENS of special needs pupils could be spared gruelling daily bus journeys if a plan to build a special school in Haverhill passes the final hurdle.

Plans to build a 70-place special free school in the grounds of Samuel Ward Academy have passed the first round of the selection process at the Department of Education.

A deputation from the school has now been invited to make their case at a 90-minute interview in London on May 10.

If approval is given it is hoped the school could be open by September next year.

Howard Lay, headteacher at the school, and governor June McNaughton, who has helped prepare the bid, said they were delighted with the news that they had reached the interview stage.

They urged anyone with evidence to support their bid to come forward to strengthen their case. Last year only five bids were successful from several hundred applications.

Mr Lay said: "We know of severely autistic 16-year-olds who have to travel to Ipswich and back every day.

"They are on a bus for two hours a day. They are youngsters who are very vulnerable. They need stability and routine and it is not good for them.

"There is a lot of community support for the idea and we believe we have a really strong case. We have the room for it here and it would give these youngsters links with their local community, which at the moment they are being pulled away from."

Mrs McNaughton said the plan had been welcomed by all sections of the community.

She added: "At first we were just hoping to get through to the second stage - now we are raising our sights and really want to make it happen."

Flags galore at pre-school

BUNTING was put up and flags were waved for a good old-fashioned street party staged by a pre-school group on St George's Day.

Two sessions of 24 children at the Little Wonders pre-school group in Manor Road, Haverhill, joined in the event. It was a combined celebration for the forthcoming Queen's Golden Jubilee, when the children will be on holiday.

The youngsters made their own flags and enjoyed a lunch party with Union Flag plates. Kay Page, the group's deputy leader, said: "We talked about the Queen and we played the National Anthem and Land of Hope and Glory. The children really loved it. It was just a pity about the weather as we would have liked to have had it outside."

The group will move up to the new Westfield Primary School site in July. It is full at present, but there is a waiting list for places in September.

Head tells council of her academy plans for school

A HEADTEACHER at a school which has been transformed from failing to outstanding has spoken of her vision of replacing the existing building with a brand new one.

Madeleine Vigar, head of Castle Manor Business and Enterprise College, spoke at Haverhill Town Council's meeting on Tuesday night and told councillors that she was hopeful that the school's bid for academy status would be successful, as was the case with Haverhill's other upper school Samuel Ward Academy.

The Castle Partnership has already been formed, linking Castle Manor with Place Farm Primary School, and has taken over the nearby former Parkway Middle School site to create a communications and media hub.

Ms Vigar said she would like to create an all-through facility on the same site, catering for pupils aged from 13 right through to 19.

It is expected that academy status could be in place by June and a business plan will then be created to try and achieve the 'dream' of a brand new school building.

Councillors congratulated Ms Vigar on the huge improvements made at the school. Cllr Maureen Byrne, Haverhill Town Mayor, told her: "We are very proud of both Castle Manor and Samuel Ward schools."

New council chief checks out town

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A NEW council chief with a background in regenerating town centres has been finding his way around the towns and villages of the district.

Ian Gallin has just taken up the new post of joint chief executive for both St Edmundsbury Borough and Forest Heath District Councils, covering Haverhill, Bury St Edmunds, Newmarket, Mildenhall and the surrounding villages.

Mr Gallin, 42, was previously assistant chief executive for Plymouth City Council – responsible for a populace of close to 250,000 – and has 25 years' experience in working for local government.

His new role is part of a growing list of shared services between the two councils. His background includes a lot of economic development work, including regenerating town centres, from visual enhancement up to major redevelopment schemes.

Apart from saving vital cash, Mr Gallin feels the two councils will benefit from the new arrangement.

He said: "The general response from the staff has been hugely positive, and people are just waiting to get going with joined-up services."

"I have also worked in west Wiltshire with five market towns and rural parishes, where we did a lot of work with town and parish councils. I shall be looking at all the towns and parishes to see what their challenges and needs are, and working with other bodies to achieve those things."

"I cannot do anything on my own; you cannot regenerate an area on your own, you have to work with other people. I am listening to what people have to say and looking at whether we are the best people to provide services, and what the people who receive them think.

Man with a plan: Ian Gallin in Haverhill.

"I have spoken to a number of other joint chief executives and they all say it is a brilliant job. It must give you a stronger voice across the districts when you are looking for external investment. I will have a desk at both councils and I do plan to be proactive, working with our customers to make sure we are providing the right services. I am really looking forward to working with Haverhill Town Council and all the other councils to see the two districts develop."

Cycle shop planning its first charity ride event

In the saddle: bike adjustments at Aerocycles in Haverhill.

CP

A CYCLE company is organising a charity ride later this month in aid of Kidney Research UK.

Aerocycles of Falconer Road, Haverhill, is holding its first organised event on Sunday, May 20. The charity ride is for everyone to enjoy, from the novice rider through to the experienced cyclist.

The routes wind across three counties, starting and finishing in Haverhill, on quiet roads with a few undulations but no mammoth climbs.

Anyone just easing into the cycling or the season can choose a 50km route, with a 100km route to allow more practised riders to stretch themselves a bit further.

Aerocycles has expanded the size of its premises to cope with a big rise in the number of people taking up cycling and now offers a service to adjust a bicycle to make sure that it fits the rider. Owner Steve Foster said:

"Until I went on the course at Trek bicycles, I never realised that minute adjustments could make so much difference to your riding experience in comfort and performance. It is surprising how many people are riding round with their bikes set up incorrectly and it can cause lots of back, neck and knee problems."

Visit the website www.aerocycles.co.uk for more details.

Help needed for free school bid

"We held a public meeting and there were some very moving stories from parents who have been struggling to get their children with special needs to school for years. One lady said from the age of three and a half, her child has had to be put on the bus to Sudbury, come rain or shine."

"We know there is a need for this within the Haverhill community and if anyone has information or who would send their child to a school like this, we need it to take along and support our bid," added Mrs McNaughton, pictured.

Free schools are state-funded schools set up in response to what local people say they want and need in order to improve education for children in their community. The first ones opened last September.

Anyone who has information to support the Samuel Ward bid can call the school on (01440) 761511 or e-mail swa@samuelward.co.uk.

Gun accused before judge

A MAN charged with a string of firearms offences has appeared in court before a judge. Karl Dowling, 48, of Bramble Close, Haverhill, faces 21 separate charges in relation to the alleged discovery of huge arsenal of illegal weapons at his home by police on February 5. Dowling appeared at Ipswich Crown Court for a brief preliminary hearing on Tuesday. He is charged with possession of weapons and ammunition without the necessary certificate or which are prohibited weapons. The weapons listed include machine guns, shotguns, rifles and pistols.

Judge David Goodin told Dowling that he must return to court on May 11 for a plea and case management hearing. Dowling will continue to be granted unconditional bail until his next court appearance.

Live wires close road

DIVERSIONS were set up after a main road was closed because live wires were hanging down low over the carriageway. Police were called to the section of the A143 at Haverhill Road, Little Wratting, just after 11am yesterday to answer reports that the wires had come down to a dangerously low level. Diversions were up while repairs were carried out and the road reopened just after 1.30pm.

700 caught speeding

MORE than 700 motorists were caught speeding in Suffolk during a week-long enforcement campaign. Roads Policing Officers and Suffolk Constabulary's SafeCam vans were deployed countywide to increase checks and enforcement during the campaign, lead by Tispol – the European Traffic Police Network, and clamp down on those speeding. During the campaign a total of 707 motorists were caught speeding, 616 of which were caught by SafeCam cameras and fixed cameras, and the remaining 91 caught by police officers on patrol. Speeding is one of the 'fatal four' driving offences alongside drink-driving, using a mobile phone and seatbelt offences. Last year there were 28 fatal collisions on Suffolk's roads resulting in 30 deaths. In six of these incidents speeding was identified as being a contributory factor.

Grateful mum in pledge to help charity

A GRATEFUL mum who spent four months staying at hospital after her baby daughter was born with a rare birth defect is raising funds to improve facilities for other parents in the same position.

Three-year-old Milly Williams is due to start school in September, but her arrival in the world was traumatic. When she was only two days old when she endured an eight-hour operation to correct the defect, in which the oesophagus is improperly attached to the trachea, the "windpipe" that carries air into the lungs.

She then developed pneumonia and other complications and anxious mum Kaylee, who lived in Sudbury at the time, stayed at Acorn House at Addenbrooke's for four months while her daughter was treated.

The house is provided by the Sick Children's Trust Home from Home fund and it is this charity that Kaylee hopes to raise money for, to provide extra equipment for families using Acorn House.

She said: "It is an amazing charity. It was a really worrying time and it really took the pressure off for us, not having to travel back and forth. The cost of petrol would have been huge, as well as having to pay to eat at restaurants. We could eat at the house and sit in the television room and just get away from the hospital for a while.

"It is such a rare congenital illness that a lot of doctors have not heard anything about it. She would get food stuck and food would get into her lungs, causing her to choke. She had about 500 chokes. She had to be fed by a tube straight into her stomach and they took it away just before her first birthday.

"Food is still a struggle for her now. She will always have to have regular operations to keep her oesophagus open."

Mrs Williams, 26, who now lives in Boyden Close, Wickhambrook, also has son Olly, who will be 2 in February.

A free fundraising ladies' night will be held at the Cheeky Chimps children's activity centre in Boundary Road, Haverhill, on Friday, May 25 at 7.30pm. There will be pampering products and other goods on sale, as well as raffles with many prizes donated by local businesses. Anyone who wants to make a donation can take it to Cheeky Chimps.

In tune: Dave Bowyer with grandchildren Jordan and Neve Hopkins, 7.

A JOINT band concert will be an extra special event for Dave Bowyer, who will be joined in the performance by his two grandchildren.

Dave and his grandchildren Jordan Hopkins, 12, and Neve Hopkins, 9, are all members of the Haverhill Youth and Community Band, which is performing a joint Community Brass spectacular with Hadstock Silver Band on Saturday, May 5 at Haverhill Arts Centre at 7.30pm.

Dave began playing when his sons joined the youth band in the 1980s. He is still a regular member of both Haverhill bands and was delighted when his grandchildren took up playing. Within the community band there are several family groups with parents and children enjoying a hobby which transcends generations.

Lisa Jardine-Wright, musical director for Hadstock Silver Band, said: "Hadstock village are proud of their brass band, which has been in existence for over 100 years. Over the years there have been close connections between the two bands and they are delighted to join forces again. Dave Bowyer has actually played with both bands and epitomises the strong links and friendships between the two."

The concert will feature the bands playing individual programmes and then joining forces for a grand finale. The programme will feature a wide range of music from composers as diverse as Irving Berlin and Georges Bizet. Diane Pannell is the director of the Haverhill band.

Tickets are £5, £4 OAPs, £3 under-16, available from the Arts Centre box office on (01440) 714140.

THOUSANDS of blooms were used to create a bumper floral display as part of the civic celebrations for the opening of a new church.

The new St Felix Roman Catholic Church in Princess Way, Haverhill, was built on the site of the old one it replaces, which had become too small for the growing congregation. A Vision and Sound festival of flowers and music was held from Friday to Sunday – and the whole community was invited.

Father Michael Teader welcomed Haverhill mayor Cllr Maureen Byrne and mayor of St Edmundsbury Christopher Spicer, as well as MP Matthew Hancock, to the official opening of the building on Friday.

Haverhill and District Flower Club was joined by top national designers to arrange thousands of blooms. Haverhill Choral Society, the Youth and Community Band, pupils from St Felix school, an African choir and representatives from the Filipino and Indian communities all joined forces for a concert. There was also a service with all the other churches in the town on Sunday.

Floral displays on the theme of colours filled the church and were described by a leading member of the National Association of Flower Arrangement Societies as “better than those seen at the Chelsea Flower Show”.

The flowers used in the displays represented flora from around the world. A South African visitor commented on the fact that she had not seen specimens like it since leaving her homeland.

Arrangements were produced by award-winning artists from as far afield as Hunstanton, Ipswich and other towns in East Anglia as well as from Haverhill and District Flower Club and St Felix Parish.

Mr Hancock spoke of what he saw as being a sign of hope for the developing community in Haverhill – a multi-cultural community where people's backgrounds, talents and interests were recognised, valued and used for the benefit of everyone in the town.

A spokesman said: “Very many thanks go to the Youth and Community Silver Band, the Haverhill Choral Society, the choir of St Felix School, the African Choir, CB9 Youth from the Filipino community and the young Indian dancers representing the community from Kerala.

“The groups were evidence of the rich diversity of our people and a testimony to the success of a community working together.

Anyone interested in Haverhill Flower Club should contact Sheila Gray on (01440) 704062 or Valerie Phillips on 07890 168944.

There are also evening classes which take place each Wednesday at 7pm at St Felix – for more information contact Sheila Gray on (01440) 704062 or Sharon Waters at St Felix (01440) 707752 / 07787832451.

Snow leopards need you

LINTON Zoo is urging people to help support wild snow leopards.

The zoo hopes its own snow leopards Lhamo and Centurio will produce cubs soon and is offering sponsorship packages for £100, with half of the money going towards building them a new enclosure.

The other half will go to the Snow Leopard Trust, which is aiming to raise $13,000 by April 30. If they hit the target then it will be matched dollar for dollar by long time supporters of the trust, giving an additional $13,000. By mid-April about $8,000 had already been raised, so there is $5,000 left to go.

Kim Simmons of Linton Zoo said: "We have pledged our support to this very worthy cause and have signed up to their National Partnership Programme. The NPP offers the unique opportunity for zoos and their visitors to get directly involved with the highest priority in-situ conservation and research programmes in Snow Leopard range countries.

"For every Snow Leopard sponsorship pack taken out, we will give £50 to the Snow Leopard Trust to go towards their target. This £50 will be potentially turned into £100 (about $160) by the Snow Leopard Trust supporters. So come on, help us help them reach their target."

Founded in 1981, the Snow Leopard Trust is the world's leading authority on the study and protection of the endangered Snow Leopard. To find out more about the work carried out by the trust, visit www.snowleopard.org.

To sponsor one of Linton Zoo's Snow Leopards, phone (01223) 891308 or visit www.lintonzoo.com.

If you would like to make a donation towards the cause but do not wish to sponsor a Snow Leopard then debit card payments can be taken over the phone or you send a cheque made out to 'Linton Zoo Conservation Fund' to Linton Zoo, Hadstock Road, Linton, Cambridgeshire, CB21 4NT.

there are no children with special needs to be taken to the school, she and husband Lee have decided to appeal against the decision.

Mrs Rulten, 38, also has to get Reece, 12, to Samuel Ward Academy and Daniel, 2, to Stepping Stones and takes Thomas, 1, along with her.

She said: "It's just very stressful. I could not get anyone to give me a definite answer. I was told that Jack is first on the list if anyone drops out at Coupsals, but it would be very unsettling for him if he went to Hundon, then had to move back to Coupsals.

"Hundon is a very good school with a fantastic OFSTED report, but I do not drive and my husband's job takes him all over the country.

"It is not right to send a 5-year-old in a taxi with a stranger, CRB (Criminal Records Bureau) checked or not.

"Also if he is taken ill at school they will not provide transport, so how am I supposed to get him home? We have not chosen to send him to this school, so we will be appealing."

Gemma Deeks, senior transport officer for Suffolk County Council, wrote to Mrs Rulten: "Unfortunately we do not provide Passenger Assistants in mainstream home to school transport arrangements.

"I can, however, confirm that the driver of any taxi arrangement would have been through the CRB process."

WORRIED mum Suzanne Rulten is refusing to accept a place for her 5-year-old son Jack at a village school five miles from his home – because she would have to send him unaccompanied on school transport.

Mrs Rulten had hoped that Jack would get a place at Coupsals Primary School, close to his home in Pipers Close, Haverhill, where he already attends the Stepping Stones playgroup.

However, she was told this week that he was being offered a place at Hundon Primary School, – and spent more than a day trying to find out whether he would have an adult with him on the journey.

Now that she has found out that this will not be the case, as

Time to fight granny taxes

Sir, the Government trumpeted it as a 'simplification of the tax system', but it has quickly become known as the 'granny tax', and there's a good reason for that. It's just not fair on our pensioners.

So, you ask, "what's all the fuss about?". The answer lies in changes to the tax system made by Chancellor George Osborne at the last budget. We are all entitled to a certain amount of income without paying any tax on it, but since the 1920s the over-65s have been allowed a little more than the rest of us. Winston Churchill introduced this extra age-related allowance in the 1920s, recognising that many older citizens have less income, and fewer opportunities to earn money. I'm sure that's a situation we all recognise still applies today. But the Chancellor has decided to phase out the extra allowance for existing pensioners, and to stop it altogether for anyone who reaches age 65 from April next year so that we all get the same tax-free amount whatever our age.

"Isn't that fair?" you might ask. The answer is a definite 'No'. Pensioners will be up to £323 per year worse off because of the change, at a time when they can least afford it because they face other attacks on their income: The Winter Fuel Allowance has been cut; pensions have been indexed to a lower measure of inflation; the increase in the state pension age for women has been brought forward; and last year's VAT rise added £275 to the costs faced by an average pensioner couple. Add to that the impact of very low interest rates on savings – because the Government hasn't got our economy moving – and cuts to vital services like the NHS, social care and local transport which hit older people harder than the rest of us. For many the rise in the state pension will mean nothing because of changes to pension credit, another benefit designed to help pensioners on low incomes. And as a final insult, the Chancellor plans to abolish the savings credit, a benefit paid to pensioners on modest incomes who have saved into a pension scheme. Another 'simplification', but unsurprisingly it's now being called 'granny tax 2'. Not looking so fair now, is it?

What's worse is that for high-earning pensioners, the extra allowance isn't available anyway because they don't need it, so they will be no worse off. The ones who will lose out most are those on middle incomes who have worked all of their lives and who have saved into a pension scheme. So, hard-working people who have saved money and aren't very well off in their retirement are being asked to pay an extra £1bn to the Government, so that they can fund a tax cut from 50p to 45p for the richest 1% in our society. Now that's simple – but don't be fooled into thinking it's fair!

For the sake of our pensioners or to protect your own future, don't let the 'granny taxes' go unchallenged. Tell your local MP, Matthew Hancock, that you want him to support the campaign to have these unfair tax changes reversed. Phone him on 0207 219 7186 or 01638 576692, email matthew@matthewhancock.co.uk or write to him at House of Commons, London SW1A 0AA.

MEMORIES

■ THIS week's picture, taken from our archives, shows a group of young sportsmen. Do you recognise anyone in the picture or know what the event was? Do you know where and when it was taken? Send your answers to: Memories, Haverhill Weekly News, 4 Queen Street, Haverhill, CB9 9EF by Tuesday morning, or email editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk.

Picture: 389276.

Last week's Memories photograph, from our archives, prompted a response from Keith Mizon, 57, who now lives in Diss, Norfolk. He said: "I think the children in the picture, who are aged about 8 or 9, are (from the left): Hedley Reynolds, me, Donna Taylor, Elaine Healey, Hilary Morgan, Kim Wright, David Newman, Neil Cogger, and (kneeling) Kevin Whybrow. The picture was taken about 1963/4 at the Cangle Junior School after (I think) some bees were found dead in a hive the school kept. "Your reporter, Jo Deeks, was I think at the school at the time and in the same school year as the children pictured." Jo confirmed: "I did recognise several of these people and I must admit I looked to see if I was one of them, as I was at the school at the time and in the same class as those pictured." According to our records, the picture was taken in May 1965.

Thanks to town's support, our playgroup raised £700

Sir, Friends of Sandcastle are truly grateful for the tremendous amount of support we received from everyone who attended our first ever Easter egg hunt and fete on Good Friday, to help us raise funds for improving Sandcastle Playgroup's garden. It was a privilege to have small local businesses hold stalls on a wonderful day of fun and games for all the family. Massive thanks go to Frankie & Benny's, Zeiss, Haver Arms, D:fine, Pipes, A Revolution, K&S Men's Room, Indulgence, Sonia's, the leisure centre, Drabbet Smock and Avant Garde plus many more local businesses who generously donated prizes for our raffle, which helped us to raise almost £700! We look forward to seeing you at other events we'll be holding through the year to reach our first target of £5,000. Thank you!

Disgusted by snub to brave man

Sir, I'm absolutely disgusted that free transport to Addenbrooke's has been stopped for this brave man who fought for our country ("D-Day veteran's fury over transport snub", Weekly News, April 19).

It sums this country up that if he had been on benefits he would be eligible. Here we have a proud man who supports himself without calling on the state. With all the millions of pounds that are wasted, not only by the NHS but countless other Government departments, this man has had what little help he'd been given, taken away. Disgraceful.

Lottery money saves drug and alcohol service

A DRUG and alcohol service has been saved from closure by Lottery cash.

The NORCAS charity is celebrating after short-term funding was secured for its Suffolk community service, which had been in danger of closure.

Under threat was a specialist hostel in-reach drug and alcohol service for supported housing schemes in the Haverhill and Bury St Edmunds area which is run by NORCAS.

Following an awareness-raising appeal by the charity, the Big Lottery has stepped in to provide funding, via the Office of Civil Society Advice Services Fund. This will effectively safeguard the service for one year until March 2013.

The hostel in-reach scheme

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

helps to support the local community by providing treatment for those who are significantly affected by the misuse of drugs and alcohol.

It targets residents who are at risk of losing their accommodation due to addictive behaviour. Treatments include psychosocial interventions, social engagement support and external liaison with clinical treatment providers. Key workers also accompany clients to external appointments such as with GPs or housing providers.

Matt Wilson, head of fundraising for NORCAS, said: "We are very pleased and also relieved to have secured this vital funding for the next 12 months. The hostel in-reach service has literally saved people's lives and it was very important to NORCAS to be able to continue the service for the clients who depend on the support it offers. It helps clients turn their lives around, benefiting themselves and their health, which in turn improves matters for the police, the NHS and the local community."

Assistant Chief Constable of Suffolk Police, Paul Marshall, said: "We are pleased to hear that funding has been secured for this service. The hostel in-reach service not only provides treatment and support for people on site but also lifts the burden on the police force, giving officers a trusted, proven and effective place to direct people when they are in need of this sort of help."

Phone taken from car

THIEVES smashed the window of a Peugeot estate car and took a mobile phone and several CDs. The theft happened in Quakers Lane, Haverhill, between 10.50pm and 11.15pm last Friday. Calls relating to the incident should be made to Suffolk Police on 101.

Garden seat is stolen

A GREEN iron garden chair was stolen from a garden in Poplar Walk, Stradishall, between 5pm last Wednesday 10am the next day. Calls can be made to PC Paul Downey on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Change from motor sales

PLANS for change of use from motor sales to storage and sales of antique furniture and collectables have been received by St Edmundsbury planners. The bid relates to Unit 7 at Moonhall Business Park, Helions Bumpstead Road, Haverhill, has been submitted by Perry Capon, Caps and Cards Collectables.

Exports earn town firm top award

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A SMALL company which exports to more than 60 countries is celebrating winning the prestigious Queen's Award for Enterprise in International Trade.

Across the UK, the award has been won by only 151 companies, of which 17 are in the East of England.

Family business LMK Thermosafe Ltd manufactures industrial drum and container heaters for use in potentially explosive atmospheres. It now exports the majority of production from its Haverhill headquarters, with export earnings increasing by 85 per cent over three years.

The company, which now employs 10 people, started in London in 1985 and was operating from a small unit factory in Harlow when Mark Newton and his wife Jan bought it from its original owners in August 2000. The couple live in Linton, so when more space was needed, they moved to Falconer Road in Haverhill, then to their current larger premises on Moonhall Business park in Haverhill in September 2009.

Managing director Mark said: "Any export business is hard-won, and our continuing growth in every continent is particularly due to the efficient and high-quality technical support given to our overseas customers and marketing partners.

"As a family-owned business, it is particularly pleasing to have been contributing in a small way to the resurgence of UK manufacturing exports, and to be safeguarding employment for our staff even in tough economic times."

The heaters the firm makes are used in diverse manufacturing operations ranging from melting of ingredients for waxes, resins and paints, toothpastes, cosmetic gels and creams, automotive oil blending facilities and Middle Eastern desert crude oil extraction systems through to processing of honey, syrups and vegetable oils for cereal bars, yoghurts and sauces in the food industry.

Many of the firm's customers are multinational corporations.

Pupils face up to animal challenge

Application: Casper Warby has his face painted by Lenorah Rawlins.

CP

BEAUTY students went along to a primary school to use their talents to do some colourful designs on the children's faces.

Lenorah Rawlins from Haverhill was one of a group of mature beauty therapy students from West Suffolk College who went to St Edmundsbury Primary School in Bury St Edmunds last Friday to paint the children's faces with animal designs.

In order to complete a qualification in face-painting, the students needed to cover animals as part of their range.

Lecturer Helen Moye said:

"It was simply luck that the school were doing a related topic with their Africa studies. It was great fun and the children loved it."

The children were able to choose from a selection of designs – lions, cheetahs, butterflies, elephants, zebras and giraffes.

Soloists sought for sinfonia showdown

THE call has gone out to musicians as the countdown begins for the 23rd Haverhill Sinfonia Soloist Competition.

The annual competition, which attracts musicians from around the world, will take place on September 29. Entries are now open until August 23.

The categories are brass, piano, singers, strings (including guitar and harp), and woodwind. Competitors can be of any age and nationality and should be of diploma standard.

There are 38 prizes and engagements to the value of £8,900 to be won, including solo performances with Airedale Symphony Orchestra, Bedford Sinfonia, City of Southampton Orchestra, Lambeth Orchestra, and Redhill Sinfonia, and also solo recitals in Brickwall, Brockenhurst, Bury St Edmunds, Cambridge, Church Stretton, Corsham, Derby, Ely, Faversham, Haverhill, Haywards Heath, Hoddesdon, Holt, Leighton Buzzard, Linton, London, Louth, Matlock, Stratford-upon-Avon and Witney.

The adjudicating panel will be Kevin Hill MBE (music director, Haverhill Sinfonia and Arnold Sinfonia), Ronan O'Hara (head of keyboard studies and head of advanced performance studies, Guildhall School of Music and Drama) and Gary Ryan (assistant head of strings and professor of guitar, Royal College of Music).

Sponsors of this year's Competition are Balaam's Music (Bury St Edmunds), Empire Pianos (Braintree), Evans-Pughe Strings of Hitchin Ltd, Glasswells Ltd, Haverhill Research Park, Haverhill Town Council, MachinePart Engineering Ltd, Marchant Manufacturing Co. Ltd, Pat Taylor and Nicholas Jarman, Music Sales Group, Rotary Club of Haverhill and District, STP Stationery, The Herbert Group, VION Sliced Cooked Meats and Wood, Wind and Reed (Cambridge).

Firms win praise for forging ahead

BUSINESS representatives heard an MP describe their town as 'going places' but quizzed him over help for small firms at a meeting.

More than 50 people attended the bestofhaverhill event at Days Inn to hear Matthew Hancock, MP for West Suffolk, give his annual review.

Mr Hancock commented on the enthusiasm for improvement, taking opportunities and the strong community spirit in Haverhill, which he said made it a pleasure to represent.

Matthew talked about Haverhill being one of only 10 towns in the country who are piloting the Government's community budget scheme.

This new approach involves the county, borough and town councils pooling their funding, to ensure money is spent more effectively and avoid duplication. The pilot is being administered by the board of One Haverhill, which was formed to improve people's quality of life.

A further development has been the introduction of Local Economic Partnerships, with funding and resources, available through these organisations, for driving business growth.

Mr Hancock praised Samuel Ward Academy and Castle Manor Business & Enterprise College for their outstanding OFSTED reports.

Top service: MP Matthew Hancock with Sarah Gibbs, of Finishing Touch Interiors, Westley Hellen, of Avant Garde Hair Boutique, and Richard Woodward from Foster Denovo who were recognised for being highly recommended by their customers.

CP

At a national level, Mr Hancock said that a good deal of action had already been taken to make life easier for businesses wanting to grow and employ more people. Encouraging enterprise, reducing corporation tax, making it easier to get planning permission and improving the road infrastructure were all designed to move the country forward.

Local accountant Paul Donno raised his concerns about the availability of superfast broadband.

While residents would receive the service, the density of businesses in the town made it commercially unviable for BT to provide. Mr Hancock said that funding has been made available to support broadband in rural areas and he is insisting that some of this cash be directed to areas like Haverhill.

Other issues included small business funding and the high rate of interest offered by organisations willing to lend, the difficulty experienced by people trying to get back into work who wanted to retrain but could not afford the investment in the training and the way the government are treating charities' funding.

Elaine Carr, owner of thebestofhaverhill said: "This was an excellent meeting, very lively and well attended.

"Matthew is always keen to hear about the issues local businesses face and I think he really does work hard to try and get them resolved."

Olympics rallying call to bosses

VISITORS brought to East Anglia by the Olympics or Jubilee celebrations could provide opportunities to increase tourism and boost the local economy.

Keith Brown, chief executive of Visit East Anglia (VEA), addressed Chamber members at a joint Haverhill and Newmarket Chamber of Commerce breakfast networking event last Friday at Palace House in Newmarket and said this year provided a unique opportunity to showcase the region. He said: "Tourists are increasingly looking for locally distinctive experiences rather than mainstream attractions and in Suffolk we have this in spades."

Justin Friend, vice-chair of Haverhill Chamber of Commerce said: "We all know that the Games is coming but it is now less than 100 days away and I do think that businesses have not truly grasped the opportunities available to grow revenues and to make contingency plans. This, for many of us, will be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."

The value of tourism in Suffolk is estimated to be worth around £1.7bn to the local economy and the sector employs about 25,000 people in the county.

Cinema event is a blockbuster for town businesses

DELEGATES sat down with their popcorn to watch the latest blockbuster after attending a new networking event at their local cinema.

Cineworld in Haverhill hosted its first networking event for delegates from local and regional businesses and organisations. It was such a success that more are planned in the future.

Those attending included representatives from The Gallery, Frankie & Benny's, Haverhill Association of Voluntary Organisations and Abbeycroft Leisure.

The cinema's management team gave a presentation to the attendees covering areas such as the cinema's ability to host conferencing events, venue hire and private screen hires, plus information on its Unlimited Card and the local offers system that can benefit businesses – Cineworld Haverhill works with businesses like Frankie & Benny's to offer discounts to each other's customers.

Presentations were delivered by John Scott, general manager, Jane Walford, operations manager, and technician Mark Allard. After the presentations, the attendees were treated to an exclusive screening of Wrath of the Titans.

Cineworld plans to host more such events. Anyone who would like to attend on behalf of their business should visit the cinema and speak to a member of the management team.

Anyone interested in hosting a conferencing, training or other types of venue hire events at the cinema should visit or see www.cineworld.com/venuehire.

WIN Avengers tickets and goodies

THE ultimate team of superheroes smash their way into cinemas this weekend – and to celebrate the launch of Avengers Assemble, the Weekly News has teamed up with Cineworld Haverhill to offer one lucky winner four tickets to see the film and a fantastic goodie bag featuring a t-shirt, a USB stick, a keychain and a selection of badges.

Nick Fury is director of S.H.I.E.L.D., an international peace-keeping agency and a who's who of Marvel superheroes – Iron Man, The Incredible Hulk, Thor, Captain America, Hawkeye and Black Widow. When global security is threatened by Loki, who like his brother Thor is from the realm of Asgard, Nick Fury and his team will need all their powers to save the world from disaster.

To celebrate the launch of the film, Cineworld Haverhill will be hosting family fun days today, tomorrow and Saturday, featuring a whole host of fun and games for all the family' including colouring competitions, design your own comic book, a find the superhero treasure hunt and a fancy dress competition in which customers can come dressed as their favourite Marvel superhero, with prizes available.

And to be in with a chance of winning our competition, simply answer the following question: Which Avenger originates from the realm of Asgard?

- A) Iron Man
- B) The Incredible Hulk
- C) Thor

Artist's epilepsy has made her determined to succeed

VICTORIA Clark is a busy lady.

When she's not at her graphic design job, the talented young artist is in her bedroom, illustrating beautiful children's books – her first, The Forgotten Treasure of the Galapagos, was published last year. And as if that wasn't enough, Victoria is in the midst of organising an ambitiously large art exhibition, which opens in St Ives this weekend.

It's impressive stuff, not least because Victoria lives in the shadow of epilepsy, which can cause frightening seizures at any time. Yet she's adamant that it's because of, rather than in spite of, her illness that she's so single-minded about life.

"It's made me a far more determined person," says Victoria, who's 27. "I was always reasonably determined before, but I think I'm more out to prove myself now."

Victoria was a healthy teenager, studying for her A-levels at the St Ivo Sixth Form, when, at 17, she had her first seizure.

She and her friends had been at a house party and, when a group of them were on their way to buy food early the next morning, Victoria collapsed and began having violent convulsions.

"My memory of that day is a total blank until a few hours later, when I came round, asking Mum why I had grass stains and mud on my trousers. She said: 'I've told you repeatedly that you've had a seizure'.

"It was a full 'grand mal' epileptic seizure, where your arms and legs are going, and you're out of it. They think it probably lasted less than half a minute – not very long, but enough for me to lose consciousness and a block of memory."

Victoria was sent to hospital for an EEG (electroencephalogram), where electrodes were attached to her head to read her brainwaves.

"It showed up I was epileptic, but mildly, and as long as I didn't drink too much, didn't do anything too silly, and basically took care of myself, I'd be fine. They told me it was very unlikely I'd experience another one."

Assuming it was all over, Victoria just got on with her life, albeit more carefully.

The only thing that bothered her was having to stop driving for a year. "I was learning at the time, so that made me cross! But it wasn't the end of the world.

"I still went out with my friends, and I did drink, but never to the excess that a lot of people do. I always ended up becoming 'mum' on a night out, I suppose. I always knew my limits."

And, she adds, her friends didn't see her any differently. Not the ones who mattered, anyway. "Because I couldn't go out and be a daft teenager as much, I think some of them kind of lost interest because I was boring! But it just shows who your real friends are, doesn't it?"

A keen artist, Victoria went on to do a BA in illustration at Anglia Ruskin University (ARU), and decided to take a year out to travel before embarking on ARU's famous Children's Book Illustration MA.

Always an animal lover – she lives with her mum in Needingworth along with two dogs, six cats, and countless fish, budgies, finches and cockatiels – Victoria opted to go to every naturalist's dream destination, the Galapagos Islands, followed by a stint in Fiji and then Australia.

"Everything in life was normal. I just never imagined it would be a problem, because I was always told it wouldn't be.

And then of course, when it came on on the third day of my trip, it was something of a shock...

Victoria, by this time aged 22, had flown to Ecuador for a few days, and from there was due to fly to the Galapagos. She was sharing a house with another girl, who she'd just met, and the pair of them had gone to an internet café.

"My memory of what happened is very patchy. I remember being on the phone to my mum, and she made a joke about me packing some hummingbirds with me to bring home, and apparently I started laughing hysterically. I thought it was the funniest joke in the entire universe, which is not like me! She thought it was very strange, and told me to put the phone down and go, which apparently I did. I don't remember anything after that."

It transpired that Victoria had had another grand mal seizure – five years, almost to the day, since her first.

"The girl brought me back to where we were staying, and I remember coming round and going: 'Where am I?' The reality of the fact I'd had a seizure was only because of the state my tongue was in: I'd bitten it, and it was very sore and swollen."

Victoria went to the hospital, where a neurologist prescribed her some medication, but she decided to continue with her trip. "I was hoping I wouldn't have another one. I'd spent a lot of money and wanted to enjoy my travelling as much as I could."

For the next few months, Victoria was fine. She relished her time with the beautiful beasts of the Galapagos Islands, which were to inspire her first book. But her happiness faded when, after boarding a plane bound for Fiji, she had another seizure.

"I remember getting on the plane and falling asleep – at least that's what I thought had happened – and coming round in a very white room, and then being very confused that people were still speaking Spanish. I was thinking: 'Ah, I'm not in Fiji.'"

This time Victoria knew there was no choice but to go home: "I don't think there was really any option," she shrugs. Back in the UK, things didn't get much better. Victoria was tried on a number of anti-epileptic medications, none of which worked for her, and she had to delay doing her MA by a year.

"After a time I was taken off medication, and gradually, as the drugs withdrew from my system, I was then fine. Touch wood I haven't had a seizure since July 2007. They did say to me if I'm not on the medication I'll continue to have seizures, but I haven't."

These days, Victoria takes it all in her stride. "I try not to think about it. I make sure I'm healthy, and I live within my limits: I don't drink too much, I make sure I'm fit, and I look after my health."

"I do tell people, for security reasons, because if by any chance I did have a seizure then they need to know what to do, which is to make sure there's nothing to bang my head on, and just let me go."

But hopefully it won't happen again, as long as she keeps herself well. "If I don't eat enough I can feel very wobbly, and tiredness and stress can be triggers, which might have been triggers when I was travelling."

"I've been in places where there are strobe lights, and it makes me feel funny – very disorientated and slightly sick – but I've never had a seizure from it. If it goes on for too long I just cover my eyes."

One way to keep her mind off the illness is to stay busy, and Victoria certainly does that. She heads up a collective of other professional and semi-professional artists, and is currently organising an exhibition of their work in St Ives this week.

"We call ourselves CIA – Cambridgeshire Illustrators and Artists – and the exhibition is my chance to showcase people's work. I think there's a lot of talent in this area that people don't know about."

"This is the first one we've done – it's been a lot of hard work, but it would be nice to think that we have forged a group that will exhibit together again, and perhaps bring in new members."

And, she says, she absolutely won't let the shadow of epilepsy dominate her life. "When you're suffering from it, you feel extremely isolated and alone, when actually there are thousands of people in exactly the same boat as you are," she says.

"But it's very rare that you meet somebody who hasn't got something wrong with them at all, or won't experience something bad. It's just a part of being human, really."

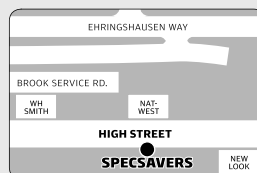

■ The CIA's Spring Exhibition, featuring the work of 16 local artists and illustrators, will be at The Corn Exchange, St Ives, from tomorrow to Sunday from 10.30am-4pm. Admission is free. For more information, call (01480) 469454.

Students step across the culture gap

THE beauty of the Taj Mahal and begging street children were just two of the contrasting sights viewed by two students and their teacher on a two-week trip to India.

Ellie Rodwell and George Fryer were accompanied by teacher Jan Bergau, head of modern languages at Samuel Ward Academy in Haverhill on their visit to a school in Jamshedpur. They visited to look at diversity between the two cultures and set up more joint projects between the two schools. The deputy head of the school in India will be visiting Samuel Ward.

During the visit, Ms Bergau kept a journal and observed many differences at the private school, which is funded by parents and the company Tata Steel. Primary school pupils read from holy scripts and wore the dress from the different religions. Lessons included tie dyeing and karate. In her journal she wrote: "We visited the junior school during the first few lessons, seeing what they did and having a 'learn the vocabulary' game, whereby they said a word in English and we had to say it either in Hindi or Sanskrit.

"Then we changed over and the other team had to say it in German. It was a draw.

"The pollution from Tata Steel was appalling, covering the city in a cloud of dust, blocking out the sun and making it seem as though there was a light mist in the air. The people in this town were so friendly and hospitable.

"I have never experienced such warmth and it brought tears to my eyes on many occasions.

"Our last day, getting up early to leave for our tour with the ex-street children. We were taken through the old town to the home where 60 boys are living and spent some time playing with them. We saw the little shop where they sell a kilo of plastic and receive 25-30 rupees.

"As we left we were accosted by naked children begging for money. Them sitting on my feet and hugging my legs was dreadful and reduced me to tears.

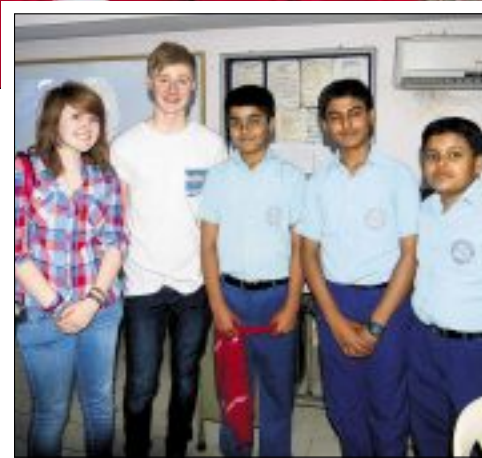

"Finally, the day finished with watching a karate class. They were superb, breaking tiles with their hands, heads and feet, fighting and setting fire to tiles before breaking them.

"A great two weeks. What I have taken away with me? The everlasting memory of the astounding hospitality of the Indian people."

Well red: students Ellie Rodwell and George Fryer and teacher Jan Bergau adopt traditional Indian dress. Below, Ellie and George meet new friends.

Chosen: Harriet Potter and Ben Carlyon.

Ben and Harriet hoping to be first head boy and girl of new academy

TWO teenagers have been chosen as ambassadors for their school by winning a poll to choose a head boy and head girl.

Ben Carlyon from Haverhill and Harriet Potter from Sudbury, both aged 14, will take on the leading roles for The Castle Partnership, which incorporates Castle Manor Business & Enterprise College and Place Farm Primary School in Haverhill.

Both said they were looking forward to taking on the role at a particularly exciting time for the school.

The Castle Partnership is currently taking steps towards becoming an all-through academy, which means they would be the first head boy and head girl of the new school.

The academy would continue the work The Castle Partnership has already begun in combining all of the phases of a child's education into one seamless journey. This means that students who attend the new academy would study a connected and innovative curriculum from the day they join at age 4 to the day they move on to university or employment.

Ben and Harriet said they were looking forward to representing the partnership and telling local people about the opportunities it has presented them with.

Ben and Harriet take over from Lauren Arkesden and Joshua Franks, both aged 16 and from Haverhill, following an election process with the school parliament.

The school parliament gives students the opportunity to take an active role in the development of the school and in a variety of events.

Limit on tax relief 'could be bad for hospice'

BY JENNIE BAKER

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A HOSPICE charity has warned it could suffer if Government plans to cap tax relief on donations are given the go-ahead.

St Nicholas Hospice Care fears philanthropists could be discouraged from giving if a limit is imposed on the income tax relief donors can claim on charitable gifts.

The charity has added its voice to the hundreds of voluntary organisations slamming the plans, which would stop donors claiming tax relief on giving exceeding £50,000 or a quarter of their income.

Kevin Clements, fundraising and marketing director at the charity, said fundraising was already a challenge and the Government's proposals could make it even harder.

He said: "My biggest concerns surround how this might impact our already challenging fundraising task."

"This move may discourage large donations, many of which keep trusts and grant-making foundations alive. These organisations alone currently contribute £250,000 to St Nicholas Hospice Care each year.

"I also believe individual major donations could become rarer as a result of the proposed changes."

"We need to make it easier for people to help us, not harder."

The charity has focused on enticing bigger donors because of the impact the economy has had on people's wallets.

Mr Clements said: "We are lucky with the support we get from the community because it is tough out there at the moment. But we have been trying to develop income from larger donors and these moves could hit us hard."

The Government's plans were put together because of concerns some wealthy people are exploiting the lack of a cap to avoid paying tax.

While donors do not personally profit from the current arrangement, they can choose where their money goes.

Donations exceeding the cap under the new system, which is set to kick in next April, would be taxed.

WEST SUFFOLK COLLEGE

2011 FULL-TIME STUDENT DESTINATIONS AND PROGRESSION

WHERE DO OUR STUDENTS GO?

FOCUSING ON THE FUTURE

Every year, West Suffolk College works hard to give young people the support they need to enable them to progress in the world of work or undertake further study. The College provides a range of learning opportunities, tailored to the individual needs and learning styles of a diverse student body, made up of people of all ages, from different backgrounds.

This year (2010-11), 78% of students who completed a Level 3 qualification (equivalent to A Levels) have progressed either to Higher Education (45%) or employment (33%). This is an excellent result, and even better than last year's figure (70%).

The potential for progression to university from a course at an FE college is often underestimated. West Suffolk College has always had a strong tradition of HE provision, further strengthened by its status as a centre of University Campus Suffolk. Students have been accepted for places at universities all over the country from Lancaster University to University College Falmouth.

With the further development of Apprenticeships and Higher Apprenticeships and a wide range of programmes on offer, the College is well placed to provide young people with a springboard to further training or employment.

The College was judged outstanding in many areas by OFSTED Inspectors who visited in May 2010. The overall grade awarded was good with many outstanding features. Care guidance and support for all learners is highly rated.

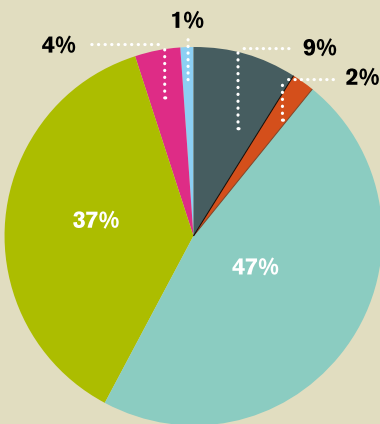

Learners make good progress throughout their time at the College. The quality of teaching and learning opportunities enables students to achieve substantial advances between Key stage 4 and 5.

Alex Freeman progressed from the School of Participation to secure a place at university, despite having struggled in mainstream school.

Alex lacked direction and motivation, having dropped out of school in Year

11. He joined a Youth East ESF (European Social Fund) outreach programme held in Haverhill and progressed to the Prince's Trust Team Programme at West Suffolk College.

He went on to complete an Extended Diploma in Media Production at College, and is now studying for a BA(Hons) in Film and Television at The University of Hertfordshire.

Graphic Design

A young woman who feared that her dyslexia would hold her back has achieved more than she ever thought possible at West Suffolk College. Bobbie Johnson is in the second year of a Foundation degree in Graphic Design at UCS Bury St Edmunds, having completed a National Diploma Photography course at West Suffolk College. She said: "I want other people that are dyslexic to know they can do well in further education and not think they are not clever enough to achieve what they want to achieve."

When she has completed the FdA, Bobbie is going to top up to a full BA (Hons) in Graphic Design with a third year of study, still at UCS Bury St Edmunds.

As part of her Foundation degree, Bobbie completed a period of work experience with 032 Design Consultants Limited, based in Great Cornard. Director Peter Rumsey said: "The students who have worked at 032 Design brought fresh new ideas. In return, we have been able to give them valuable work-based skills that they can use in their future careers."

Bobbie Johnson said: "West Suffolk College helped me gain the confidence I need to pursue my dream job. I now have the confidence to be able to establish a career in Graphic Design."

Catering

Klára Smudlová came to the UK from the Czech Republic to pursue a career in catering. Klára started working at the Ickworth Hotel as a Commis chef and started the Level 3 Advanced Apprenticeship in Professional Cookery with West Suffolk College in February 2011. She was very focused and completed the full framework in just nine months.

Although English is not Klára's first language, she produced an outstanding standard of written work. Her head chef, Nick Claxton-Webb, has been very supportive. Klára received a promotion to Chef de Partie as a direct result of her learning.

Klára said: "Completing the Advanced Apprenticeship has provided me with the opportunity to learn and develop new skills and helped me to gain promotion." She is hoping to gain further qualifications in Hospitality Management as her role progresses.

The corridors of power

Sir Antony Jay tells JENNIFER SHELTON why updating Jim Hacker and Sir Humphrey for the 21st century proved surprisingly easy – and why he has no regrets about having Margaret Thatcher as his biggest fan

STILL one of the classic British sitcoms after a 25-year absence from our screens, Yes, Prime Minister returns to audiences as a stage play, penned by original writers Jonathan Lynn and Antony Jay.

Having won acclaim in the West End, the comedy is taking to the road this spring, with Cambridge its next stop.

Updated for the 21st century, with BlackBerrys (and a few more women) in evidence, Yes, Prime Minister sees premier Jim Hacker and Cabinet Secretary Sir Humphrey Appleby face a country on the brink of financial meltdown. Yet for Jay (Sir Antony Jay, in fact, having been created a Knight Bachelor in 1988), the humour, the dilemmas and the characters – including luckless Bernard Wolley, the Private Secretary forever caught in the crossfire between his two bosses – remain very much as they ever were.

"It was funny, it didn't seem like a change at all," says Jay. "When we got together to start writing it, it had been 23 years since the series had ended, but it might as well have been two weeks. We just carried straight on."

"There's a kind of abiding truth about government," he continues. "There is a very funny play called The Government Inspector that was written in 1836, and which is just as funny today. And we wrote the first series of Yes, Minister [in the first three series, Hacker was a Cabinet Minister and Sir Humphrey his Permanent Secretary; the show only became Yes, Prime Minister for the final two runs] when Callaghan was Prime Minister, but it didn't get transmitted until Thatcher was in. The government was very, very different, but it didn't seem to worry anyone."

Does he think David Cameron and Nick Clegg will be as encouraging about today's play?

"I think so – I think they've all been to see it. But you'll have to ask them, not me!"

In the current production, Graham Seed (The Archers) stars as the blundersome Prime Minister and Michael Simkins (Mamma Mia! and Chicago) as smooth-talking Sir Humphrey. They're iconic roles to step into, but the new cast seem to be rising successfully to the challenge.

"It's interesting because they all see it differently but they all seem to be right," says Jay. "They approach it differently but it seems convincing. For years the characters were only associated with Paul Eddington and Nigel Hawthorne and it didn't seem like they could be played by anyone else. But actually they can. And of course, we wrote the five original scripts without knowing who would be cast. So it wasn't as though they were star vehicles, or that we were writing for anyone in particular."

The transition from screen to stage proved similarly smooth: "In a way we were always writing for a theatre audience because in the television studios there were 300 people. So we've always written it for audiences and for laughs."

"I think they've made a terrible mistake with comedy today in not having a studio audience for most of it. It's not just that the studio audience encourages laughter at home, it affects the way you write and it affects the way you act. There's a quality about a comedy with an audience that you don't get otherwise."

Perhaps hoping to redress the balance, Yes, Prime Minister is scheduled to return to our screens this autumn following the success of the play, starring David Haig and the majority of the original London cast.

"It's coming out in the autumn and we're recording this summer," says Jay. "It's in six parts, but what's unusual is that it's an adaptation of the stage play – so a single story – told over six episodes. So it's really a serial rather than a series."

Audiences in Cambridge will get a glimpse of what's to come when Yes, Prime Minister visits the Arts Theatre next week. Jay owes much of his career to the city, having studied here in the 1950s.

"I was at Magdalene for four years reading Classics. I loved it. Almost too much. Funnily enough, what I don't associate Cambridge with is the work. I played a lot of bridge and a lot of cricket – then I suddenly had to knuckle down in my final year to get a good degree," which he did, gaining a first class honours degree.

"I'm an honorary fellow of my college so I still go back. Things have changed, and I noticed it when my son went down in the late 70s. But you feel there are certain things that are pretty much the same. The people change but the system doesn't."

Did he become interested in politics while at university?

"I wasn't remotely interested in politics as a student, but I was interested in writing. I wrote for Granta and the Cambridge Review and edited the college magazine."

"I got interested in politics after I'd left and gone to work at the BBC, where I worked on the Tonight programme."

"It was probably, looking back, the best time to be in the BBC. It was before ITV started, and there was a great sort of revival of the BBC in the late 50s and it was all doing amazingly well. It was a lot of work but it really taught you a lot."

Band brings back Abba megahits

LEADING tribute band Abba Forever will be performing the hits of the top pop band at the Haverhill Arts Centre next month.

With a six-piece band on stage, non-stop dancing, dazzling costumes and an incredible attention to even the smallest of details, Abba Forever recreate the unique Abba sound to electrifying effect, in this all live show. Their uncanny recreation of has even passed the toughest test there is for a tribute group – a Swedish audience. Founder Jane Ellis-Forshaw said of their first appearance in the super group's homeland: "We were nervous about how Swedish audiences would react to us performing as 'their' band." They didn't need to worry they received a standing ovation and have since sold out six tours of the country, with audiences stating that they are just like the real thing.

With stunning renditions of classic hits such as Mamma Mia, Waterloo and Dancing Queen, Abba Forever Live in Concert keep audiences captivated from the opening sequence to the final sing-along chorus of this two-hour spectacular. The show is at the Arts Centre in High Street, Haverhill on Friday, May 11 at 8pm, with tickets available from the box office on (01440) 714140.

LIVE AND LOUD: Cask beers, real ales and a guitarist or two at the Cambridge Rock Festival's Spring Edition – starting tomorrow.

Double on the rocks

THOSE who have enjoyed (or are yet to enjoy) August's Cambridge Rock Festival have a chance to double up with a second preview festival announced for this spring.

The Cambridge Rock Festival's Spring Edition has been launched to be a great introduction to the main CRF festival in August each year. It will be held at Barton, just outside Cambridge, off the M11 at junction 12. There'll be a range of real ales on tap, as well as a great rock and blues line-up. Jethro Tull fans will know Martin Barre, who has played guitar on virtually every Tull album. His band will be playing from the heavier end of Tull's back catalogue this weekend. Mott the Hoople's Verden Allen will feature a set with many of the Mott the Hoople classics and Mick Ralphs (founder member of Mott the Hoople and Bad Company) delves into the blues in the Mick Ralphs Blues Band. X-UFO Danny Peyronel, Laurence Archer and Clive Edwards have teamed up with bassist Rocky Newton, playing a full set of vintage UFO and local hero and member of Deep Purple, Don Airey, will be playing rock classics featuring the fantastic Hammond sound.

Proving rock music isn't just for boys, Chantel McGregor is also joining the fray. The label-founding singer and guitarist hails from Yorkshire and was voted Young Artist of the Year in the British Blues Awards 2011. The CRF is renowned for its relaxed atmosphere and the Spring Edition will follow the same tried-and-tested formula.

There will be 20 cask beers, farmhouse ciders, keg bitter, lager and wines for everyone to sample and enjoy, and a wide range of foods are also available including vegetarian options. Camping is available – tents, caravans and motorhomes are welcome. Cars will be allowed to park next to tents for convenience and security.

news from

IF you enjoyed the previous Centre Stage productions by The Farndale Avenue Housing Estate Townswomen's Guild Dramatic Society's productions of Macbeth and The Mikado, we're sure you will be pleased to hear they are back at the Arts Centre from today until Saturday at 7.30pm with a matinee at 2.30pm on Saturday.

Following their great success, the ladies, in festive mood, mount another assault on the classics with their original version of A Christmas Carol. With their exuberant enthusiasm, they present a dizzying array of characters from the Dickensian favourite (and a few which aren't).

Join legends Boo Hewerdine and Brooks Williams when State of the Union take to the stage on Friday, May 4 8pm. Boo is an English songwriter and lead singer of indie legends The Bible. Brooks is a slide guitar wizard from Georgia, USA. Tapping into a multitude of influences, from Willie Nelson and Johnny Cash to Blind Lemon, Jefferson State of the Union combines the talents of America and England, to produce an end result full of hook-laden songs, fiery and emotional guitar playing and soulful vocals.

At the cinema, we have an afternoon showing of The Artist (PG) on Monday, April 30 at 1.30pm. Kristin Scott Thomas and Ethan Hawke star in The Woman in the Fifth (15) on Monday, April 30 at 7.45pm. The film tells of an American academic who absconds to Paris after being caught up in a scandal that costs him his job. Daniel Radcliffe stars in The Woman in Black (12A) on Tuesday, May 1 at 7.45pm, a spine-tingling period horror telling the story of a young lawyer who travels to a remote

The big film

AVENGERS ASSEMBLE (3D) Certificate 12A, 2h27m

MORE is less in Avengers Assemble, the special effects-laden amalgamation of four Marvel Comics franchises.

Bringing together characters from Iron Man, Thor, Captain America and The Incredible Hulk, Joss Whedon's frenetic romp deftly knits together plot strands from the earlier films and threads them with tongue-in-cheek humour.

While psychological substance may be thin, exhilarating action-packed sequences abound, choreographed at breakneck pace by writer-director Whedon who knows how to seamlessly meld live action with digital trickery for maximum impact.

Interestingly, he keeps the Avengers disjointed for most of the film, only bringing everyone together in the same location for the protracted final showdown to decide mankind's fate – and the likelihood of a sequel.

Thor's evil brother Loki (Tom Hiddleston) plots to exterminate mankind by harnessing the power of the pulsating Tesseract cube. Aided by an army of aliens, he steals the artefact from the subterranean headquarters of the international peacekeeping agency S.H.I.E.L.D. and enslaves scientist Selvig (Stellan Skarsgard) and ace marksman Hawkeye (Jeremy Renner) to do his nefarious bidding. In response, Nick Fury (Samuel L Jackson), director of S.H.I.E.L.D., declares war on Loki, uniting the inflated egos and rippling muscles of Iron Man (Robert Downey Jr), The Incredible Hulk (Mark Ruffalo), Thor (Chris Hemsworth), Captain America (Chris Evans) and Black Widow (Scarlett Johansson).

Avengers Assemble doesn't quite scale the dizzy heights of the original Iron Man but for almost two-and-a-half hours we're entertained and energised by Whedon's distinctive vision of the Marvel universe.

Mulch mania beats weeds

by Hannah Stephenson

MULCHING is such a useful process and so simple. You spread a layer of something or other on top of your soil, around your plants, and it stops the weeds coming up and keeps the existing moisture in.

It also reduces soil temperature, which will therefore reduce water loss, and makes beds and borders look somehow tidier, creating a neat carpet under which to display your plants.

But there are many mulches from which to choose – from organic manures and garden compost to bark chippings, straw and leaf mould. So which one is best?

Well, from a nutritional point of view, you need to go for biodegradable mulches, those which break down gradually to release nutrients into the soil.

You can't beat a well-rotted

DIGGING IN: But certain guidelines are involved in making your own garden compost.

farmyard manure, which is rich in nutrients, so it's perfect for hungry feeders such as roses and fruit bushes. Just make sure that it is well rotted because fresh manure releases ammonia which will scorch plants and may kill them. If you find fresh manure at a cheap price, it will need stacking for at least six months to rot down before use.

If you don't want to buy farmyard manure, think about making your own compost, but be warned that you need to follow certain guidelines to make rich, effective compost which is balanced. Don't fill a compost bin with mainly grass clippings or you'll end up with a soggy mess.

Use a mixture of household waste including vegetable peelings, egg shells, torn up newspaper and tea leaves or coffee grounds, along with dead plants, rootballs or used potting compost and autumn leaves. Don't add any cooked foods or meats and avoid perennial weeds and diseased plants, which may leave spores in the compost which will do their damage when you add it to your borders.

Another homemade mulch is leaf mould, made from autumn leaves you rake up, which can then be stored in dustbin liners with holes for drainage. It will take a year to break down but you should end up with a dark, sweet-smelling material which you can add to your beds and borders.

However, it tends to be shortlived and you'll probably have to mulch again next season.

The best quality leaf mould is produced from the leaves of oak, beech or hornbeam. Thick leaves such as sycamore, walnut, horse chestnut and sweet chestnut need to be shredded before adding to the pile.

If you're patient, you can use well-rotted leaf mould which is more than two years old as seed-sowing compost, or mixed equally with sharp sand, garden compost and good-quality soil as potting compost.

Other choice mulches include garden compost, spent mushroom compost, cocoa shells, wood chippings, processed conifer bark, straw for strawberries and seaweed.

Bark, a by-product from the timber industry, is available in various forms and colours.

Composted bark is better and is widely available in garden centres and doesn't go soggy in really wet weather.

Wood chips, a cheaper option, while effective as a mulch, take nitrogen from the soil and may slow plant growth, so you may have to add a little more nitrogenous fertiliser to the soil if you use them.

'Spent' mushroom compost, referring to the fact it is the compost left over from mushroom farming, is also widely available and as it contains chalk it is useful on acid soils that are low in organic matter, where the liming effect of the chalk is an added benefit to soil fertility.

It's brilliant used in the vegetable garden, but should be avoided where ericaceous plants such as rhododendrons, camellias, azaleas and heathers are being grown, as these plants need acidic growing conditions and are chalk-hating.

Mushroom compost is also not recommended for neutral, alkaline or chalky soils, which would be made excessively alkaline by the addition of further chalk.

And on the subject of peat, without getting into a heated debate on the conservation issue – don't use it to mulch the soil because it dries out, blows around and doesn't contain many nutrients.

New car emissions fell 4.2% in 2011

CARS are getting cleaner, according to just-released CO2 emission level data.

Average new car CO2 emissions fell 4.2 per cent in 2011 and have reduced by 23 per cent since 2000, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT) said.

But the average new-car figure of 138g of CO2 per one kilometre (138g/km) was higher than the 2015 European legislative target of 130g/km.

SMMT figures showed that in 2011, a total of 46 per cent of new cars had emissions below the 130g/km figure. Also, more than 65,000 vehicles were exempt from having to pay vehicle excise duty as they were below 100g/km.

Mini: Marque has contributed the most significant progress in reducing new cars' CO2 output.

Executive cars (down 9.5 per cent) and specialist sports cars (down 7.0 per cent) showed the biggest fall in emission levels last year compared with 2010, while executive cars (down 34.9 per cent) and cars in the Mini sector (down 29.9 per cent) made the biggest emissions improvements since 2000.

The Mini sector had the lowest average emission levels among new vehicles last year – at 107.8g/km – while luxury saloons had the highest at 221.8g/km.

New cars in 2011 were 18 per cent cleaner than the UK average. Diesel cars took a 50.6 per cent share of the market last year, while alternatively fuelled vehicles had a 1.3 per cent share.

SMMT chief executive Paul Everitt said: "The UK motor industry can be proud of the progress it has made in reducing CO2 emissions and improving fuel efficiency.

"Future environmental and economic success will be determined by sustained investment in new technology, research and development, infrastructure and consumer incentives.

"We are seeing steady improvement in conventional technologies and the emergence of a range of alternative technologies, creating one of the most innovative periods for the global automotive industry."

Chevrolet picks region for UK launch

CHEVROLET launched the Volt in the UK last week – and chose the region as the venue for the US marque's first major foray into the post-fossil fuel era.

The new saloon combines an electric motor with a 1.4-litre "range extender" petrol unit for when the battery charge runs low.

Chevrolet chose to launch the new vehicle in the city, having invited the UK's motoring press to Milton Keynes where they then were given a Volt to drive to the Hotel Felix off Huntingdon Road for dinner. The drive gave writers a chance to get acquainted with the car.

revolutionary new vehicle to the residents of Cambridge and we can't wait to see in and around the city," said Cambridge Chevrolet general manager Luke Gordon. "The Volt takes motoring to a new level."

The launch went very well, with drivers impressed with the Volt's power, which takes it to 60mph from a standing start in 8.5 seconds and goes on to have a top speed of 99mph.

Lovely cars: Mike Lee of Marque 1 Cars with McLaren MP4-12C.

Yours for just £189,000 – McLaren MP4-12C for sale

MIKE LEE of Marque 1 Cars has been trading in the performance car sector for quite a while.

Lee first came to attention in the region back in 2007 when he and his chum Chris Harris started up New Marque Cars from a base near Newmarket.

Today, Chris has moved across to sell motors at lower price points, while Mike went on to start Marque 1 Cars a couple of years ago and now trades from his own showroom in Longstanton.

"Cambridge, for me, has a good clientele," he explains over coffee, "and there's no one here who does the actual performance cars so it works well."

"Well" might be an understatement. Specialising in McLaren, Ferrari, Porsche, Bugatti, Aston Martin and Bentley ("and the odd Merc, Beemer and Audi"), Mike has a client list that includes Arab sheiks and stars from film and music.

"I'm currently involved in selling Eric Clapton's GT2 RS," he says, "so it's all good."

On the day our photographer pops round Mike has a McLaren MP4-12C for sale at £180,000.

"I've only just got it and honestly don't expect to have it long. The first one I sold for £210,000 and this one is £189,000 with 4,000 miles on the clock. It's UK-supplied with one owner."

"A lot of people have lovely cars but don't know how to move them on," he continues. "They don't want dealership and hassle, and I'm very private with my clients, they trust me. I deal with everything from start to finish and clearly I get them good money."

You can find out more about Marque 1 Cars at www.marque1cars.com or by calling 07738 997911.

Chevrolet Volt gets UK launch in region

SO here it is – the pretty ordinary-looking new Chevrolet Volt is now on sale, writes Mike Scialom.

You can't tell from the outside, but the Volt's primarily electric powerplant makes it a gamechanger which at a stroke puts Chevrolet at the forefront of new car technology.

Having tested the Volt across the city – OK I got lost on my way to and from the Hotel Felix and ended up on the M11 in the rush hour – I can tell you that it's a mightily agreeable car to drive. Which is just as well, because that fact offset the annoyance I felt at being stuck in traffic. When I get fed up crawling around I start looking for ways out, so when I see the words "ring road" on a roadside sign I'm like a bolting horse. I like rings and I like roads, so off I go, happy in the knowledge that I'll get there eventually. There's no hurry, it might be "their" rush hour but it doesn't have to be "my" rush hour. And guess what, having the Volt to not rush around in turned into a very positive experience.

The first thing you notice about driving an all-electric vehicle is the absence of noise to the point where you're happy to hear the tyres rolling. You'll not want to be using the music system or the aircon unless absolutely necessary, to save energy for the moving forward bit.

On sale: The Chevrolet Volt is on sale at Cambridge Chevrolet priced at £29,995 after the Government's £5,000 grant has been deducted. Pictures: Duncan Lamont

It's slightly different with the Volt because it's not actually an all-electric car – it houses a 1.4-litre petrol engine which is used only when strictly required ie when accelerating up a steep hill or if you've run out of battery power. Could I hear the slightest thrumming of an engine sitting, acoustically speaking, just below the volume of the rolling tyres? I think so, but never got to found out because of course there's no hills to speak of round these parts and the engine monitoring display, which shows you real-time information on the amount of power remaining, said I had lots of charge. The turnaround here is that Chevy has made the oil-burner subservient – 72mpg and 124g/km subservient – to the battery set-up. I could see nothing about petrol usage on the dials, but you don't study these things too closely on ring roads. Meanwhile, I had a turnaround of my own to do half-way to Huntingdon, which is how I ended up on the M11.

Point being, my hour or so driving the Volt in peak-time city traffic and out on the motorway took place at a time when, just occasionally, you have to pull ahead – when other cars are joining the motorway, for instance, you don't want to be in their way and you press your right foot down because you need to be doing 70mph in the outside lane... that's when you find out how much grunt you've got at your disposal, and the Volt has plenty, and then some.

Throughout all this the battery charge readometer stayed steady, very close to being fully charged. I mention this because I've tested some electric cars whose batteries were sorely tested by the two-mile journey to work and back, so having power at your disposal represents progress.

Progress is a funny thing, but you can tell when it's happening. Cruising around in a Volt felt like being on a super-highway to the future. Once upon a time those plain crazy guys who traversed the Rocky Mountains to California must've felt it, same as those folks who herded their camels along the old Silk Road. You build your own roads to the future with the Volt, although of course the adventure lies not so much where you go these days but how you get there. And the most surprising thing is how much the new era of vehicles that the Volt represents looks and behaves so much like the cars that we're so familiar with – but believe me, the innards are a gamechanger. The engine innards, that is – the interior is OK/well-built, and the Volt generally handles like any other muscular saloon.

So. Price. It's £34,995 but you pay £29,995 after you get your government grant sorted. When you work out how much you're not going to be spending on fuel, that's great value.

So that's how, after getting a bit lost bumbling around town and heading for the hills (I'm an optimist), it occurred to me as I pulled up outside the Hotel Felix to hand the Volt back to the very helpful Chevrolet crew that, after all that, I could probably write a road test about the experience.

Getting lost was never such an instructive experience.

Information: You can see just how much energy you have and how it is being distributed on the Volt's display.

Chief Executive

Up to £55k per annum

Age UK Suffolk is a local independent charity providing a range of services throughout Suffolk for older people and their family carers. It employs 420 staff and 710 volunteers. Due to the retirement of the current Chief Executive, the Trustees wish to appoint an inspirational leader to continue developing support that is responsive and adaptable to older people's needs and aspirations in a changing funding environment. As the local brand partner of Age UK, the charity has a campaigning and influencing role, largely delivered by the chief executive. Also you will actively develop strong relationships with key strategic partners, with Age UK nationally and with other Age UKs in the region.

You will have proven success at managing within a changing environment, excellent communication skills, financial acumen, political insight and good judgement, as well as awareness and understanding of the challenges facing older people.

For an informal discussion please contact the current Chief Executive, Daphne Savage, on (01473) 359911. To apply, please download an application pack from www.ageuksuffolk.org or contact the HR Director on (01473) 284252. Closing date: 14 May 2012. # Pre-Media Technician

Based in Cambridge

Iliffe News & Media now ranks in the top 10 regional newspaper publishers in the country in terms of copies sold or distributed. Alongside our traditional newspaper publishing activities, Iliffe News & Media is also rapidly developing a successful publishing business on the Internet and we now require a Pre-Media Technician to create and traffic web adverts in addition to creating adverts for our printed publications

ILIFFE
 NEWS & MEDIA LTD

The role:-

This is a new role which has been created to sit within our busy centralised prepress department which is responsible for the production of our portfolio of newspapers and magazines.

You will be working from an initial brief, creating advertisements for our online publications, ranging from Sky Scrapers to banners to e-wraps and then be responsible for serving the adverts to our websites. You will be liaising with the sales team to meet the client's requirements, ensuring valuable potential for future advertisements as a result.

The ideal candidate:-

Ideally, possessing some experience in a similar role would be beneficial, though not a necessity if you can demonstrate a portfolio of work and an understanding of role.

An experience of working with Photoshop and Flash as well as a knowledge of Ad-Trafficking systems and a good understanding of web technologies would be a distinct advantage.

The ability to retain a positive attitude and good interpersonal skills, whilst working to tight deadlines, are a must as you will be dealing with sales staff via telephone and email.

In return we offer a competitive salary, 5 weeks annual holiday, free on-site parking, profit share scheme and following a probationary period there is an option to join a contributory pension scheme, subsidised health cash plan and child care voucher scheme.

For an application pack please contact Glenn Rush, Assistant Pre-Press Manager via email: glenn.rush@iliffenews.co.uk

It is the company policy to welcome applications from any individual regardless of ethnic origin, gender, disability, religious belief, sexual orientation or age. All applications will be considered on merit.

Dereham Tn 2 Haverhill Rov 1

Ridgeons League, Premier Division

A GOAL in the fifth minute of stoppage-time condemned Haverhill to defeat.

The visitors went in front in the 20th minute when Marc Abbott's 40-yard free-kick was deflected in by a Dereham defender.

But the home side equalised in the 36th minute after Haverhill failed to clear their lines.

A draw looked most likely until the stoppage-time decider.

Rovers complete their season at Kirkley & Pakefield on Saturday.

West Wrattling 1 Newmarket res 1

Kershaw League, Premier Division

STEVE Bugg ensured a point for bottom club Newmarket reserves as they drew 1-1 at West Wrattling.

Andy Eady polished off a corner to give the hosts the edge after just two minutes and Craig Cutts fluffed a chance to add to their tally before Bugg levelled for the Jockeys just before the interval.

Keeper Matt Paynter twice made fine saves from Danny Hills to keep the visitors in the game as they held on for the draw.

Wrattling joint-manager Brian Pilgrim said: "They said it was the best team they've put out for quite a while, but we should still be turning teams like this over."

CAMBRIDGE AND DISTRICT COLTS LEAGUE

STEEPLE Bumpstead Dynamos have secured promotion without having to work up a sweat.

Without a game, they were confirmed as runners-up in Cambridge and District Colts League, under-13E after their nearest rivals lost.

It was an anti-climax to a brilliant first season playing 11-a-side where they scored 121 goals, hitting 12 in a match three times and once netting 13.

Three of their players – Joe Brown, Archie Sadler and Jamie Basham – feature in the top 10 in the goalscoring chart.

Witchford 1 West Wrattling 3

Cambridge and District Colts League, under-16

A SUPERB opening goal from man-of-the-match Cameron Biggs helped West Wrattling avenge their earlier defeat.

He collected the ball some distance from goal and let fly with a spectacular shot that hurtled over the keeper and into the net.

That came midway through the half, but Wrattling did not extend their lead until Luke Wilson, Harry Willett and Biggs combined in their best move of the match to put in Josh Free on 55 minutes.

Witchford replied with a goal on their only attack of note, but Free restored the two-goal cushion with his second goal.

Bar Hill 0 Kedington 12

Cambridge and District Colts League, under-14

CALLUM Dray finally broke his Kedington goal duck in the rout of Bar Hill.

Having set up the ninth goal – Dray had tried to work his way into a shooting opportunity but unselfishly put in Cameron Larkin – he steamrolled through the Bar Hill defence to beat the keeper at his near post.

And having ended his drought, he also scored the 11th from the penalty spot.

Ty Alleyne led the goal-scoring with five and Ellis Wiffen scored a hat-trick with Sam Street completing the scoring.

A ROUND of substitutions in the first half helped Wrattling settle as they eventually saw off an Eagles side trying to avenge their narrow defeat the previous weekend.

After creating several chances, the home side finally made the breakthrough just before half time when Aiden Comer struck.

Wrattling stepped up their work but were grateful to Rory Cameron, who cleared a shot off the line from a corner after keeper Jack Mitchison had saved well.

Jayden Bayford made it 2-0 and, after Callum Cooley hit the bar, Dan Green completed the scoring.

Youngs happy with points

SIMON Youngs admitted he was happy with the outcome as Haverhill picked up some useful Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship points from their washed-out league opener against Mildenhall.

Last year's Division One runners-up were in the early stages of their reply to Haverhill's 140 for 8 when the heavens opened and play was washed out.

The Haverhill skipper said: "I am very pleased with the way the lads battled out there. Batting first was always going to be difficult, but we stuck it out."

"With the way the conditions were it was probably worth 170 to 180, but we put them under pressure when they batted so, all things considered, it was a good effort."

"I think it would have been a close finish but they are a decent side, so we are happy with the nine points."

Young led the recovery after Haverhill slipped to 2 for 2, scoring 44 and featuring in a stand of 32 with his son, Luke. Ahmad Warraich was Mildenhall's top wicket-taker with 3 for 17.

■ Haverhill's Suffolk League match the following day against Mildenhall was also washed out at an interesting stage.

Mildenhall won the toss and posted 164 for 8, but Haverhill were 61 for 3 after 20 overs when rain forced a premature finish.

Fixtures - Saturday: Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship - Division One: Woolpit v Haverhill (1pm).

Sunday: Hunts County Bats Suffolk League - Division One: Sudbury v Haverhill (1.30pm). Division Three: Haverhill v Tuddenham (1.30pm).

■ Weston Colville suffered a 37-run loss to Ickwell in a rain-affected opening to their Tucker Gardner Cambs and Hunts Premier League, Division One opener.

Colville posted 138 all out, with Adam Taylor (74) the only significant scorer - extras (38) was the next highest contributor.

The rain meant Ickwell were set a revised target of 101 to win and they reached it with two wickets in hand.

That's out: Haverhill batsman Steve Fox is out for a duck against Mildenhall.

PAUL Wilby, the head professional at the Haverhill club, has been elected captain of the PGAs East Region.

Wilby, who has been with the club since September 2008, is also currently the Suffolk PGA chairman.

During his spell at Coupals Road, Wilby has developed a successful Junior Academy, based on his previous success at Fynn Valley in Ipswich, where he was director of golf for five years.

The Haverhill academy gives juniors more than 150 hours of coaching a year, where they learn valuable skills to help them with their golf as well as personal development. Two events are organised each year to help finance the academy - the junior fundraiser last week and the Wilby Anniversary Day, on August 29.

After his appointment, Wilby - who has been a golf commentator for the Royal Family of Brunei and has worked with international coaches, Dennis Pugh and David Leadbetter - collected a new Peugeot RCZ GT from Debbie Howlett, of Howlett of Lavenham, who will be sponsoring Wilby for the next two years.

■ Haverhill's Greenkeepers scored an impressive 85 points to win the Junior Academy fundraiser.

Glenn Norris, Craig Sisson, Gerry Scott and Jack Warwick finished three clear of the vice-captains Sheila and Gordon Price and Ted and Anna Fairhead in the teams of four stableford where the best two scores counted. Sally and Simon Price, Brian Jones and Graham Hepworth were third with 81 points.

Other prizes: Longest drives - Jack Warwick, Anna Fairhead. Nearest the pin - 2nd Derek Olive, 8th Neil Farenden, 12th Les Turner, 16th Robert Smith.

■ Anna Fairhead was the clear winner of the ladies' April Stableford, played over two days.

She collated 37 points, five clear of runner-up Sue Carr, who needed countback to beat Gill Barke, a new member at the club.

■ Mark Turley appropriately won the Roger Turley Putter competition, the event played in memory of his father, who died in 2005. He topped the individual stableford with 44 points, two more than Trevor Broomfield, who edged Stuart King into third place on countback.

■ Head pro Paul Wilby and PGA professional Ollie Rush gained the last-gasp win which helped Suffolk PGA beat Suffolk Golf Union by one hole at Rushmere.

They stormed to an eight-hole victory against Ryan Talbot (Hintlesham) and Chris Bartrum (Diss) in the foursomes, Hambro scoring, match featuring four pairs a side.

Details (SGU names first): Nathan Overton (Ipswich)

Wheely nice: Paul Wilby collects his new car from Debbie Howlett, from sponsors Howlett of Lavenham.

and Matt Mann (Woodbridge) lost Lawrence Dodd (Bury Golf Range) and Andrew Robinson (Lowestoft Driving Range) by three holes; Phil Westley (Hintlesham) and Josh Cottrell (Ipswich) bt Robin Mann (Southwold) and Tony Dobson (Stonham Barns) by seven holes; Chris Soanes and Ben Wallis (Rookery Park) bt Keith Preston (Aldeburgh) and Robert Joyce (Felkstone Ferry) by three holes; Ryan Talbot (Hintlesham) and Chris Bartrum (Diss) lost Paul Wilby and Ollie Rush (both Haverhill) by eight holes.

■ Home advantage proved pivotal for Gorleston when Haverhill Seniors travelled to the east coast for their first round match in the Parks Trophy. They battled through windy conditions before losing by just three holes.

Haverhill final bid fails

Southwold 38 Haverhill 8
Suffolk Plate, semi-final

HAVERHILL'S hopes of glory were scuppered by a well-drilled side in an ill-tempered match.

Having punched above their weight in the competition, playing outstanding rugby against quality opposition to reach the last four, they finally came to grief against a better team who trained together.

However, there was a sense of injustice with an inconsistent referee sin-binning Haverhill's Simon Potter for a 'professional foul' while failing to punish Southwold for persistent infringements, which led to a few flare-ups between the players.

Haverhill's scrum took the honours, performing superbly without really getting any reward as the home side turned over breakdown ball at will.

After taking a 3-0 lead in the first minute, it was a further 23 minutes before Southwold scored again, producing some flowing rugby for a converted try.

Stopped: Haverhill's Ben Jackson is stopped in his tracks against Southwold.

Within minutes Haverhill had lost the returning Martin Ransome with a hamstring problem and then had Potter binned for not releasing the tackled player.

From the penalty, the huge Southwold prop scored under the posts and the try was converted to make it 17-0.

After 31 minutes that score had been increased by seven, as the home side's scrum-half bolted 50m to score under the posts. Again it was converted.

Haverhill's reply was a Mark Jury penalty, but Southwold had figured the visitors' kicking was weak and infringed on every attack. A warning did not stop them and the referee's failure to reach for his cards made it a free for all on the professional foul.

Haverhill were further punished by seven points on 31 minutes, and the frustration of another Southwold player in the wrong place led to a melee and an early finish to the half.

Gian-Paulo Nash replaced Harris on 50 minutes and five minutes later spilled ball on a Haverhill attack led to the hosts' fly-half gathering and scoring under the posts to make it 38-3.

Jury finally crossed the whitewash for the visitors on 70 minutes, but three minutes later, after another altercation, the referee decided to blow for time.

It was a sour end to a season in which Haverhill, despite their lowly position in the Merit League, have achieved much. They have reformed their second team, who finished third in their division, and will return to the Eastern Counties League next season.
